important part of the overall improvement in U.S.-Soviet relations. debt outstanding. The rest of the money was to lieve that the Russians will refuse to pay anything more. Presumably, if most-favorednation status were granted, all the money would be forthcoming. But if some other compromise is worked out, whereby the Soviet Union would get credits it is seeking without the improved trade status, then the settlement would have to be renegotiated. The threat by Congress to deny most-favored-nation status and perhaps even the governmentbacked credits, because of Moscow's controls on the emigration of its citizens, is a continuing deterrent to Nixon administration efforts to bolster ties with the Soviet leaders.

At the recent summit meeting in Russia, President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev signed a declaration of intention to improve commercial cooperation, which was regarded by observers as an effort to sustain the momentum despite the cressional obstacles.

Solar Flares Endangered 2 On Salyut-3

MOSCOW, July 15 (AP).—The Soviet Union considered ending prematurely the current flight of its Salvut-3 space laboratory, because of unexpected solar flares and the danger of increased exposure of its two-man crew to radiation Tass disclosed today Some Soviet physicists "believed it was an extraordinary situation and even sugrested the flight program be curtailed," the government press agency said. The scientists evidently were overruled. Tass said that engineers and doctors at ground control "remain tranquil." The Sov-

The most sensitive subject of all concerns the suggestion that Russians may not be entirely delighted with Romanian policies The outsider is told that official relations with Moscow are extremely cordial and that the Soviet Union approves the Romanian dictum of noninterference in internal affairs.

"Some of you seem determined to stir up trouble between us and the Russians to satisfy the sensationalist requirements of your press, or for some other more sinister purpose," an official remarked testily. "It won't work."

In fact Romania has increasingly defled Moscow policy in many areas. Such defiance includes the declaration of rts absolute freedom to pursue an independent economic course. The move would presummably approximate Yugoslavia's dramatic break from Soviet hegemony in

As it is, Romanian participation in the Warsaw Pact military alliance is roughly equivalent to that of France in NATO. No Soviet troops have been stationed in Romania since 1957. The Romanians do not even allow the Soviet Army transit rights to maneuvers conducted by Bulgaria.

The limit of Romanian-Soviet military cooperation seems to have been joint staff exercises conducted entirely on paper. Romania avoided involvement in the Warsaw Pact invasion of Czecho-

The other sore point involves Moscow's long-standing desire to convene an international conference of Communist parties, with the idea of formally ostracizing China and its allies. Romania adamantly opposes such a conference on the grounds that it can only weaken the international movement and that, in any case, every Communist country has the right to carry out its program in its own way. Soviet Delay On War Debt

(Continued from Page 1) irritated by Congress's inaction, The Soviet press quoted at length Wednesday from a press conference in Washington by William sey, president of the Export-Import Bank, in which Mr. Casey condemned attempts by a number of political figures in the United States to interfere in the bank's activities to finance the growing trade between U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A." Mr. Casey was referring to amendments to a bill authorizing the continued activities of the Export-Import Bank that would link Soviet Union credits to the emigration question.

Symbolic Amount

The fate of the Lend-Lease settlement, which was signed on Oct. 18, 1972, along with a num-ber of other U.S.-Soviet trade accords, is more than a technical question involving a relatively small amount of money.

For years during the cold war. the Russians refused to repay the debt and rejected even the token sum being asked by Washington. Negotiations after World War II. in 1951 and in 1960, failed. The breakthrough in 1972 had important symbolic significance here, where the memory of the war and the price that was paid for victory is still vivid. Communist party lecturers are often asked in public forums, according to Western sources, whether the Soviet Union will pay money if the United States withholds the trading benefits. The answer is always no.

Food Shortages Worry India, Food Appeals With Monsoon Rains Late

NEW DELHI, July 15 (NYT),-Farmers in the Punjab have pleaded with a government minister for more fertilizer. In the state of Uttar Pradesh, officials expressed fear about dwindling wheat supplies reaching gorernment shops in cities. In New Delhi, government reserves of food have ebbed to the lowest point in years.

Food—a key to India's stability was the dominant theme here last weekend. The monsoon rains are sporadic and late fertilizer and power for electricity are in short supply, and government authorities are anxious about the effect of the threatened world food shortage and its impact on this perennially needy nation of 570 million.

Food Minister Chidambaram Subramaniam appealed Saturday to farmers in the Punjab, the most productive wheat-growing state, to bring out all their marketable surplus to prevent mass hunger. He said that no cutside country could now feed "this elephant of teeming millions." In turn, the farmers asked the minister for emergency sup-plies of fertilizers or chemical nutrients, whose cost has more than tripled in the last year. Government authorities say that in the 1973-74 agricultural year, which ended in June, India . overall wheat production was 108 million tons-5 million tons less than originally predicted. Agricultural experts £ay, however, that a more realistic figure is 103 million tons.

To thwart widespread hunger, India has purchased 1.2 million tons of wheat this year from the United States, and is probably in the market for a million more tons. The nation will also get the bulk of two million tons of wheat piedged last year by the Soviet

What has emerged, however, is a dark picture of a nation whose food production may range each year from 100 to 110 million tons -as in recent years—but whose population is climbing by 13 million each year, Thus, population is steadily outdistancing food

Compounding the problem are the government's troubled wheat policies as well as increases in the price of oil. These have curtalled imports of naphtha-based fertilizer, as well as diesel fuel for tractors and irrigation pumps. In the current agricultural year. India will probably use about three million tons of fertilizer. half of it imported. But the overal! national need is at least double-and possibly even triple -the three million tons used. By Thomas A. Johnson LAGOS, July 15 (NYT) .-United Nations appeals for food for seven drought-stricken nations at the southern edge of the Sahara are being met, relief officials here report. The officials say that more than a million tons of food, or slightly more than had been asked for at the beginning of this year, is being transported to aid the 25 million people of Chad, Gambia, Mali, Mauritania, Niger, Senegal and Upper Volta. The food shipments are mostly of sorghum and corn. While the total food available thought to be adequate, officials are reluctant to declare that the emergency in the region has ended. African and international relief workers are continuing their efforts in this second consecutive summer of large-scale aid, for they face complex logistical problems.

Distribution Problem

"There is the problem of getting food from ports to capital cities, then to village distribution points and then to even smaller dis-tribution centers," K.A.P. Stevenson, director of the UN office for relief operations in the area, "For the smaller distribution drive vehicles, and if the rains come for five or six days straight, even our four-wheel-drive vehicles are useless for a time." The summer rains have started in some parts of the region, where it takes about 90 days to produce a harvest of sorghum, millet and peanuts. Farmers planted seeds for the three crops in the vast fields of vellow sand on the morning after the first rains. The surviving rds of sheep, gosts, camels and horses are being moved northward from the savannah regions as new grass sprouts.

Years of Drought

International relief workers say that the grain needs of the region total about 3.5 million tons a year. Before the six years of drought that began in 1969, the region produced about 25 million tons of grain and imported about a million tons annually.

The successive years of drought preatly reduced annual harvests and exhausted food reserves and supplies. Domestic animals died for lack of pasture. An unknown number of people - estimated in the hundreds of thousands-died of starvation or of diseases resulting from their eakened condition.

Peking Seen Trying to Rein People's Criticism Campaign

By H.D.S. Greenway

having encouraged free expression of criticism and complaint in May, the central authorities in Peking now appear to be trying again to curb the mass campaign to criticize Lin Plac and Confucius that has dominated political life in Chine for most of this

From its beginning the campaign has gone in fits and starts. Some editorials and directives issued from the center have given the campaign its head, only to be followed by others seemingly trying to rein it in again.

Central Committee Directive No. 18, for example, gave the Chinese people in May the right to freely criticize anyone at the provincial and municipal level without restriction. China's cities soon blossomed with posters denouncing municipal and military authorities. As the weeks went by, the posters became more factional and personal with allegations of police brutality and sexual misconduct.

On the night of July 2, however, half the posters in Peking were torn down. Militiamen told bystanders that they had been ordered to remove unauthorized

Personal Protests

Posters criticizing municipal authorities were not curtailed. Saturday, Yang Shou-shan a vicechairman of the Peking Municipal Revolutionary Committee, became the latest official to be denounced in wall posters. But the days of unrestricted factional and personal protests appear to be over for the time being in Peking. It is too early to say if the provinces will follow But if the posters were testing the permissible limits of debate, as some China-watchers said those limits have now been set, as far as the capital is con-

It is probably no coincidence that the crackdown on the night of July 2 closely followed an important Reople's Daily editorial on July I commemorating the fiftythird anniversary of the Chinese Communist party. The editorial was entitled "The Party Exercises Leadership in Everything," and quoted Chairman Mao Tse-tung as saying "The Chinese Communist party is the core of leader-ship of the whole Chinese people Without this core the cause of socialism cannot be victorious

The editorial also said that the mass-criticism campaign should be conducted "under the leadership of the party committees," It might be normal, in the course of a campaign, to have struggles 'inside party committees for the cor-rect line..." the editorial said, but it in no way implied that party leadership may be weak-

NEW YORK, July 15 (NYT) .--Intensive international efforts to determine what is slowly pushing the land masses of Europe and America farther apart have shown that, in a broad sense, a large part of the North Atlantic is one vast volcanic structure centered on Iceland.

This conclusion emerged last week at a conference of specialists from both sides of the Atlantic held at the University of Iceland in Reykjavik.

Such evidence has been seized upon by those earth scientists who believe a great plume, or upwelling, of hot, relatively plastic rock from a depth of 1,000 miles or more is rising beneath Iccland. making it the most volcanic region on earth and pushing apart the eastern and western halves of the ocean,

However, other explanations were offered at the meeting. It was proposed for example, that the hot swollen nature of the North Atlantic floor arises from the slowness of spreading from its centerline.

Perhaps the most striking discovery reported at the meeting was the manner in which, chemically speaking, the second highthe focal point of eruptions that extend at least 1,000 miles down the mid-Atlantic ridge. Dr. G. E. Sigvaldason of the Nordic Volcanological Institute in Reykjavik described the analysis of 513 samples of lava collected from all over Iceland. These showed that in a strikingly uniform manner, those specimens of a potash-rich variety showed less and less potassium content at increasing distances from Kverkfjoll Volcano. The latter rises on the north edge of Iceland's largest ice sheet.

The volcano is the center of a symmetrical pattern of potassium

chemistry, as well as other chemical constituents of Icelandic cruptions, such as titanium and This trend not only radiates in all directions from Kverkfjoll but also extends under water for 1,000 miles south, down the local sector of the mid-Atlantic ridge, known as the Reykjanes Ridge. The implication is that something is taking place, centered beneath Kverkfjoll, whose influence extends at least 1,000 miles to the south. In fact, it was noted by M. H. P. Bott of Durham University in Britain that the floor of the Atlantic slopes upward toward Iceland from as far south

This Mr. Bott said, "may be interpreted" as indicative of a south-to-north increase in tempersture of the plastic layer, or asthenosphere, believed to the beneath the rigid surface of the earth. It is the softness of this layer that is believed to make possible the motions of the great plates of the earth surface, ruch as those moving Europe and America away from one another, If, for some reason, the layers ere particularly hot beneath losland and the vast region sur-rounding it, the layer would swell and the sea would become correspondingly shallower.

Such a possibility was reinfor ed by a report from Dr. Marcus Langseth and Gary Zielinski of Columbia University's Lamont-Ocherty Geological Observatory. Virtually the entire sea floor, extending about 1,000 miles north and south of Iceland, displays an unusually high rate of beat flow from the earth's interior, Dr.

Langseth told the meeting. This applies to the region north of the Charlie-Biggs fracture zone, where the mid-Atlantic ridge is offset at latitude 53 degrees north, as well as to the Norwegian and Greenland Scar. "Evidence is increasing," Dr. Langseth said, "that Iceland is but the emerged part of a much larger anomalous

ed by the FBI in its uniform crime reports. FBI Director Clarence Kelley said that the new figures ocratic votes to give President At stake in the next election are 20 of the Democratic seats and 14 of the Republican ones.

Gain of Six Likely

Watergate scandals, the Democrats at most could pick up six to nine of the Republican seats. The probable gain, however, is likely to be less than six.

The most vulnerable Republi-cans are considered to be Edward Gurney (Florida), whose recent indictment on bribery charges has hurt his re-election chances: the eventual Republican contender for the seat of Utah's Wallace Bennett, who is retiring: and Henry Bellmon (Oklahoma). Militon Young (North Dakota). Marlow Cook (Kentucky) and Bob Dole (Kansas), all of whom face powerful challengers.

Even if every one of these six Republicans should lose, plus two or three others, the Democrats still would not have a veto-proof Senate.

Guaranteed Support

Although they would hold a 67-to-33 majority, President Nixon would probably be guaranteed at least 36 votes on the busing issue. enough to uphold a veto, and 43 on strategic nuclear power.

The key vote on the busing issue in recent weeks was on May 15, when the Senate voted, 47 to 46, to kill strong anti-bus-ing language backed by Mr. Nixon. Of the 46 senators with Mr. Nixon, 36 are not up for re-

From this group alone, Mr. Nixon would have enough votes to sustain any veto on the busing issue. Moreover it appears likely that he will have several added votes on busing, since new senators from such states as North Carolina, Florida and Pennsylvania would probably back the President on busing.

Mr. Nixon's position appears to be even stronger on the weapons issue. The key vote in recent week was on June 10, when the Senate defeated, 49 to 37, a move to cut out $77 million in new 'counterforce" funds that the President sought to improve the accuracy and yield of nuclear

Goldwater Favored

Of the 49 senators who voted with Mr. Nixon, 37 are not up for re-election and another, Barry Goldwater (R-Arz.), is considered a shoo-in for another six-year term. So Mr. Nixon can count on the base of 38 votes, plus at least five from senators who missed the June 10 vote but favored Mr. Nixon's position and are not facing re-election. Moreover, several of the new senators are likely to support Mr. Nixon on such strategicarms issues as reduction of forces or research spending.

Although big election losses will not hurt Mr. Nixon on some crucial votes to override vetoes, such losses would guarantee that virtually none of his own major legislative proposals will get through the Senate if the Democrats oppose them. Even before Watergate, the President was having trouble pushing his legislative proposals to final passage. It is clear, however, that the slogan "veto-proof Congress," voiced by some Democrats as a goal and by some Republicans as a nightmare possibility, is, like so many slogans, misleading. The democrate cannot attain it, and the Republicans need not fear it.

Not an 'Internal Affair'

Amid all the obscurities surrounding the revolt on Cyprus, one thing is clear. It is not, as the rebels insist, "strictly an internal affair." The Greek government has been accused of fomenting it; the Turkish government has ordered a military alert because of it, and there is—to make the international aspect of Cyprus perfectly plain-a UN "peacekeeping" force on the island. Any major change in the Cypriot government, especlally one that appears to threaten either the national status of Cyprus or the rights guaranteed to the Turkish Cypriots, is a broadly international affair.

The national genealogy of Cyprus is long and tangled. Essentially Greek, it was ruled by Turkey for three centuries, and is now inhabited by a large Turkish minority. Under British rule from 1878, the British were aubjected, in the 1950s, to pressure from Greek Cypriot guerrillas, and counterpressure from the Turks. The solution, achieved in 1960, was an independent Cyprus, with formal guarantees of this status by Britain, Greece and Turkey, and with Archbishop Makarios as President. The archbishop, aithough he had been an articulate spokesman for "Enosis"-union with Greece-took his responsibilities under the treaty seriously, so he, too, came under fire from exponents of Enosis in Cyprus and in Greece.

When George Grivas, the most vivid personal symbol of Enosis, died last January, there were hopes that Makarlos might succeed in bringing some peace to his longtroubled island; that the then Greek government was willing to accept such a solution. But that was a different Greek government than now rules Athens, and other circumstances, too, have changed. Greece and Turkey are bitterly wrangling over oil potentials in the Aegean, and Makarios, only last week, accused the Greek government of sustaining the fight against him through the Greek-officered Cypriot national guard.

It was that body which has claimed to have attacked and said it murdered Makarios, and the Athens government still bears the onus of the late archbishop's indictment. Great Britain is immediately concerned, because of its responsibilities under the treaties, and the UN is at least equally involved. But NATO cannot stand aloof, while two of its members, Greece and Turkey, march to the brink over a strategic island in the strategic Mediterranean. What a Cyprus without Makarios would be like is very hard to tell; he has personified its independence since the beginning. But the long, patient work of many years, that sought to bring some peace out of the historical tragedy of Cyprus, cannot be overturned by a group of Greek officers-in Nicosia or in Athens.

Whale Quotas

The claims coming from the Japan Whaling Information Center will astonish anyone familiar with the facts. At the 1973 meeting of the International Whaling Commission, both Japan and Russia voted against quotas for fin and sperm whales, refusing to accept them even after they were approved by a majority of the member nations.

Under the commission's exceedingly loose rules. Japan had a technical right to so refuse, but its action hardly constituted observance of the IWC's restrictions. On the contrary, Japan, like Russia, has consistently exceeded the commission's adopted quotas.

Other misinformation put forward by the "Information" center is equally puzzling. If "meat is the prime reason" for Japanese whaling, why is half the catch composed of sperm whales, which are not eaten at all? Whale may provide 9 per cent of the meat consumed by the Japanese people (the Japan Whaling Association says it is 6 per cent) but it is less than 2 per cent of their total protein intake, which comes from fish, shellfish and soybeans as well as meat.

The 1974 session of the IWC, recently concluded in London, offers some hope of a breach in the stone wall that has up to now constituted the Soviet-Japanese attitude. Both countries voted against newly devised "selective moratoriums," including one on the rapidly diminishing fin whale. Nevertheless, the Russians were otherwise cooperative enough to encourage the hope that their country would this time abide by the vote of the majority.

If that proves to be the case, Japan, having made a face-saving show of resistance, may follow suit. Japan could quickly erase spreading worldwide resentment-including a boycott of Japanese products—by bringing itself into line with the conviction that no nation has the right to obliterate an animal species-least of all an animal as magnificent as the whale.

Britain's Offshore Oil

Any ground-breaking, long-range program advanced at the moment by Britain's minority government is enveloped in unreality. Everyone knows it will be subject to revision after the next election, now expected in September or October. So it is with the plan under which the British government would meek at least a 51 per cent share in all existing and future North Sea oil fields,

Energy Minister Eric Varley's proposals feli some distance short of the full nationalization of oil resources that many had expected on the basis of the Labor party's campaign promises. However, a British national oil corporation would be established, eventually to go into the refining and marketing of oil. Present plans might be expanded if Labor this fall should win the majority in Commons that would inevitably bring more pressures on Prime Minister Harold Wilson from his left wing.

On the other side, former Prime Minister Edward Heath has made it clear that a Conservative government would scrap the project for a national oil corporation and direct state ownership, relying instead on taxation of oil company profits to protect Britain's interests. The Tories fear that extensive state intervention would discourage exploration and delay the benefits. Britain already meets 90 per cent of its natural gas needs from North Sea output and expects to be self-sufficient in oil by 1980, thus solving its chronic balance-ofpayments problem. Like any oil-producing country. Britain under any government will want substantial control of such resources. The ouestion is whether this should take the form of state ownership; and if so how. THE NEW YORK TIMES.

International Opinion

U.S. Japanese Relations

During the past 25 years, Japan and the United States have intermittently indulged in a secsaw battle in their relations. This country's relations with America began with one that required protective patronage. It then developed into that of a nominal partner, and finally became a strong economic competitor. During the past few years, Japanese - American relations have been somewhat strained due to the acrimonious textile trade negotiations; the controversial Vietnam war; and a trade imbalance.

Quite recently, however, the trade balance has turned in favor of the United States. which has also been able to extricate itself out of the Indochina quagmire. In Japan, on the other hand, the fulminations over the mutual security treaty have subsided. In other words, there are no urgent problems that can antagonize the two countries at present. . . To make a long story short. Japanese-American relations are still immature, and, therefore, could either improve or deteriorate. Thus, it is of utmost importance that the leaders of the two nations maintain and brace their regular venues of contact and dialogue . . .

Sikkim Situation

Allowance must be made for the usual hyperbole in weighing the Chinese attack on India over Sikkim. The comparison with Soviet action over Czechoslovakia is absurd. The "suppression of the Sikkimese people's resistance" entirely falsifies the political circumstances in this small state where the new constitutional arrangements enjoy majority support. But in accusing the Indians of "stepping into the boots of the colonialists" and using the constitutional change as a pretext for annexing Sikkim, the Chinese reveal their real concern at what has happened. . . .

Italy's Crisis: Shape of Things to Come

By Piero Sanavio

ROME—The present Italian crisis, the worst since 1946, is largely a reflection of the impotence of the Christian Democratic party, in power for 28 years. While Amintore Fanfani, former president of the Senate and the party's strongman, is possibly Italy's most dynamic politician, he is by no means a statesman. Since his comeback last fall, he has led his party through a series of disasters—as witness its defeat over the move to repeal the divorce law and its losses in the Sardinia elections. Anti-Faniani sentiment is building up within the party. To counter this, he recently fired two of his opponents from the party's central committee.

Still, the Christian Democratic party has cohesion. What holds it together has little to do with political faith or political programs. It stems, rather, from a network of complicities and special interests that the party's pretorians and centurions have established during its years in power, forming what Italians call a sotiogoverno-or a subgovern-

This subterranean government controls nearly all the posts in the state or state-controlled administration, ranging from hos-pitals to health insurance agencies, ENI (the state-owned petroieum concern), Montedison (the petrochemical giant), RAI-TV, etc. Moreover, Italy has at least 200 useless state organizations whose present purpose seems to be to offer featherhedding jobs to party officials. The crisis, therefore, cannot be resolved by replacing this or that Christian Democratic politician with a new recruit: there are no new men in the Christian Democratic party. All the members, moreover, share a common concept of power that has little to do with 20th-century democracy. Instead, the points of reference seem to the mad kings of the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies.

Responsibility

In all fairness, is should be pointed out that politicians in other parties—those which have been collaborating with the Catholics during the last 10 yearsare also responsible for the situation. They have preferred the advantages of power to its responsibilities.

For example, Italy has probably the best highways in Europe: many of them are useless, with intile or no traffic. They were built not because they were necessary but to curry favor with icca! electors. Italy's postal services are collapsing, thanks to the incapacity of Christian Democratic minister Giuseppe Togni. Italy's health service is falling apart: Hospitals have no man-dages, medicines; the kidneymachine centers are closing for lack of blood filters; doctors find it impossible to operate: hospital administrators are refusing to accept patients; contractors have stopped supplying hospitals because hospitals do not pay them.

On the other hand, the stateowned insurance agencies, which are supposed to pay the hospitals, are using their money for other purposes. A subsidy of 2,000 billion lire was allotted recently by the Council of Ministers to nelp hespital administrators and health agencies pay their debts. What is needed, however, is not so much money as a reform. Hospital and health agencies are in the hands of Christian Democratic politicians-subordinate posts have been given to members of other parties. Nino Gullotti. the present Christian Democratic minister for state industries, started his career with a featherbedding job in a hospital: for many years he drew a salary from a Messina hospital as a

Taxes have been raised to improve the country's balance of payments and give a breath of air to collapsing national industries. A part of the money, though, will go toward financing political parties-from the neo-Fascist Italian Social Movement MSI to the extreme left.

Until now, parties were financed by private lobbles, the most influential being that of the oil companies. In exchange for the money they have received, ministers and vice-ministers are known to have had initiated special measures reducing taxes for oil companies and to have put pressure on state agencies to raise the price of gas. Other funds come to the parties from such sources as ENI and Montedison. Until three years ago, the boss of ENI was Eugenio Cells, one of Fanfani's friends. He is now president of Montedison.

Observers here maintain that Cefis and Fanfani are mounting an operation to transform Italy into a presidential republic. The implications are grim: a presidential republic could only mean an authoritarian state, a new form of Fascism Sixty to 70 per cent of state administrators in Italy have Fascist pasts. The same can be said many politicians, including Fanfani. Moreover, it is clear now that the leaders of those desperate Fascist groups that, in the last two or three years, have tried and are probably still trying to seize power by force, were only the long arms of persons in political establishment. The hard to eliminate them.

The Possibilities

In this perspective, what sort of future is Italy facing? There are at least three possibilities. One is the formation of a leftwing front, an alliance between Socialists and Communists, who would adopt a common program as in France. This, however, is the least probable solution. The left has barely 40 per cent of the Italian vote. Many Socialists too, are now expressing doubts about the advisability of cooperating with the present government. "This coalition," they say, doesn't offer any guarantee of democratic operativity."

But in the end Congress must look to its own resources. To wait upon courts or prosecutors m a search for further evidence could bring disabling delay. If the President continues to defy the committee the remedy is to add that defiance to the grounds for impeachment,

Has Evidence

The truth is that the committee already has the evidence it needs: much more than a grand jury would ordinarily have to bring the most serious of indictments, and more than a petit jury needed to convict John Ehrlichman-evidence not only of criminality but of a pervasive buse of power.

"I don't give a - what happens. I want you all to stonewall it, let them plead the Fifth Amendment, cover-up or anything else, if it'll save it—save the plan. That's the whole point." Those are the words of Richard

Sexism: Can It Be Avoided?

By William Buckley Jr.

NEW YORK-Twice in as many days I have been reproached as a sexist, having inlended no offense, and I fear that the line I had thought best left underined needs now a little chiseling lest things get out of hand. mean, more out of hand.

I am reviewing a book for The New York Times. It is a very fine book about the Antarctic and includes engreeing chapters about the great expeditions of a half century ago. I conclude the review by observing (can any observation I have observed in the past 10 years, have been more innocent?) that the book would appeal not only to scientists and students of the Arctic but to "boys who love adventure stories."

Two pieces of mail already, the first especially indignant. Just what makes you think that only boys love advanture stories? I read adventure stories throughout my childhood, and it is typical of male chauvinists to assume that only boys like to read adventure stories."

A day later, in the company of two distinguished journalists, I sought to examine the question going the rounds, namely where are American leaders. That last is the question explored in the current issue of Time magazine at great and rather resourceful length. A lady panelist raised her hand to ask had we noticed that of the 200 young potential leaders in America, listed by Time magazine, only 19 were women? "Approximately 9 1/2 per cent," she said, exactly. We were all temporarily nonplussed, and it was then that I found myself saying that, really, the figure was not all that surprising, because it remains a fact that more men than women are attracted to those conspicuous professions from which leaders are taken. I felt a chill in the audience, as if I had said the kind of thing Professor Shockley specializes in

A Manifesto

Accordingly, I issue herewith a modest manifesto. The movement for equality between the sexes will not, at my hands at any rate, issue in a death sentence for the synec-

That there are grown people in the world who go around sar-ing things like "chairperson" is testimony not to bisexual attempts to create equality, but to transserval resolutions to sound shipid. The phrase; "will appeal to adventure loving bots" is not an exclusionary phrase, because the word "boys" in this case means not only boys, but also girls. You cannot maintain the equilibrium of the English language by saving that "man's inhumanity to man" is measured in part by the sexism of that timese Is it seriously thought that man's inhumanity to man is to be distinguished from man's humanity towards women? Or that "he who laughs last laughs best" means that girls laugh best when they laugh first, whereas boys laugh best when they laugh

And as for the business of future leaders. Ten years ago, at the start of the women's lib movement, approximately 16 per cent of the students in law school were girls, and now that figure has risen by approximately 14 per cent. This statistic has been cited in such tones of despair as would be appropriate in saying that over a 10-year period death from starvation had diminished by only few percentage points in

Uniformity

It is the uniformity of the standards that is wrong, a tiresome point but no less true for the making of it: the notion that the male lawyer is necessarily engaged in more productive, or more humane work, than the female nonlawyer. Last week we learned that our Secretary of Health Education and Welfare, Caspar Weinberger, has solemnly announced that it is not a regulation of his office that boys and girls attend jointly school lectures on sexual hygiene At the University of Arizona, it has been announced that unless exactly as much money is spent on girls sports as on boys sports, the entire federal subsidy will be withdrawn

What kind of prehensile lengths are we going to? Miss Germains Green recently debated with me on the general subject, and saked me to propose a formal resolu-tion. I typed out, Resolved, give them an inch and they'll take a mile" but, prudently, thought, better of it, as one does not play mischlevonsly with metaphors with Germaine Green But, 100

Strangely, Gen. Glap is being blamed for the shortcomings of - Hanoi's 1972 offensive in South Vietnam, Some analysis believe that Gen. Giap opposed the offensive but went along when the Politburo decision was made and also saw to it that his name was publicly identified with the campaign.

Thus, he is being used as emething of a scapegoat while there who pushed hard for the offensive-notably party leader Le Duan-are left unscathed.

The attacks on Politburo veteran Trueng Chinh are equally difficult to comprehend. Some Hanoi newspapers have recently published letters to the editor criticizing the standing committee of the National Assembly—which Truong Chinh heads-for responsibility for the nation's current economic woes.

The Viet Cong said the goverument's accessitions were only violations of the cease fire" and repeated their charge that the elections for municipal and provincial councils were a violation of the Paris peace agreement.

Thien Victory Seen

Final results of the ballotrag not expected until later in week, but political observers have predicted that Mr. Thieu's Democracy party would capture most of the 478 seats in 44 prov-inces and 11 municipalities. There were more than 1,000 candidates. Political observers saw little national significance in the nailoting, except that it appears to be part of Mr. Thieu's strategy to extend his political power down to the local level. His party already controls both thembers of the National Assembly.

Voters showed little interest in the elections during the twoweek campaign. According to government figures, the turnout was low by Vietnamese standards. A government official said 79.3 per cent; or 5.7 million of the 7.2 million voters, cast ballots, compared to 90 to 95 percent in previous elections.

In Cambodia, government roops east of Phnom Penh continued to battle insurgents in the contested region around the town of Prey Veng, the command reorded today. The command said 65 insur-

For the last two months Khmer Rouge Intergents have been moving to closer to Prey Veng shelling and attacking government outposts in the region.

Intelligence sources indicated that large rehel units have been observed, but reinforced government forces stopped the insurgent advance on the town.

Closing of Border With Rhodesia Is Costly to Zambia

GENEVA, July 15 (Reuters).— Zambia's decision to close its frontier with Rhodesia will have cost it a total of $291 million by the end of 1975, the United Nations said today.

Sir Robert Jackson, coordinator of UN assistance for Zambia, said the figure "illustrates dramatically how the landlocked country is bearing by far the greatest burden of honoring the UN policy of sanctions" against the Rhodesian government. He told the UN Economic and Social Council here that Zambia's national development "has undoubtedly been delayed by the necessity to devote resources. which would normally be spent on economic development, to meeting the costs resulting from the border closurc."

He said that an important factor contributing to these high costs was the effect of worldwide inflation on the cost of transport. - But he added that the Chineselinanced railroad between Tansania and Zambia "is reported to be making impressive progress ... and ... has already been able periodically to transport quantities of imports into

Palestinians Offer Hussein Stiff Reconciliation Terms

DEIRUT; July 15 (AP) .--Palestinian guerrillas announced three stiff conditions today for a reconciliation with King Hussein

The announcement was made as guerrilla leader Yassir Arafat met with King Paisal of Saudi Arabia on the start of a tour of Arab countries. Guerrilla sources in Beirut said Mr. Arafat is consulting with Arab leaders be-fore a visit to the Soviet Union.

The three terms for reconciliation, reported by pro-guerrilla newspapers after meetings of the Executive Committee of the Palestine Liberation Organiza-tion, were:

• Formal recognition by Jordan of the PLO as the sole representative of the Palestinian

· Public commitment that Jordan will allow guerrillas to operate again from its territory against Israel.

 Declaration by Jordan that it agrees in advance to the establishment of an independent Palestinian state on the Israelioccupied West Bank of River

Jordan and in the Gaza Strip. The terms would be difficult for King Hussein to accept, Since driving the guerrillas out of Jordan in fighting in 1970, the 39-year-old monarch has repeatedly vowed that he will never allow the guerrillas back.

Guyana to Seize Reynolds Mines By End of Year

GEORGETOWN, Guyana, July 15 (NTT).—Prime Minister Fornes Burnham said vesterday that his government would nationalize Reynolds Guyana Mines. Ltd. a subsidiary of the Reynolds Metals Co., by the end of this year.

Reynolds's production in 1973 exceeded 800,000 tons of calcined and dried bauxite. It is one of two concerns producing bauxite in Guyana. The other is the Guyana Bauxite Co., Ltd., the state-owned company that took over Canadian-owned operations when they were nationalized.

Mr. Burnham announced the decision to nationalize Reynolds at Linden Town, 65 miles south of here, site of the state-run bauxite mines and plants. In his speech, the Prime Minister attacked the United States for its opposition to the nationalization of the Demerara Bauxite Co. a subsidiary of Canada's Alean Aluminium, Ltd., in July.

Mr. Burnham said that the United States had tried to block World Bank loans for Guyana's sea defenses and that Guyana had eventually secured a loan with the help of Canada, India, Mexico and other nations.

Intrusion of Modern Ways Blamed

Mental Illness Sweeping the Eskimo World

By Robert Trumbull

YELLOWKNIFE. Northwest Territories, July 15 'NYT',-Social dislocations caused by the intrusion of modern ways upon the hunting and fishing society of the Far North have been followed by a severe outbreak of mental illness, suicides and murders among Eskimos according to mental health experts.

The problem was discussed here at the recent third international symposium on circumpolar health. attended by 300 specialists from 10 countries.

Scientists working among Eskimos from Alaska to Greenland reported that the effects of 50cial change from increased conlact with white civilization since World War II have been disastrous for the native peoples everywhere.

Rate Is Tripled

The social and behavioral cusorders of Alaskan Eskimos have been accompanied by a virtua epidemic of suicides—now occur-ring at three times the rate recorded 15 years ago-while the homicide rate has doubled in the same period, said Prof. Fred Milan of the University of Alaska in Fairbanks.

Dr. A, P. Abbott of the Canadian Department of Health and Welfare, noted a similar rise in mental disorders, suicides and murders among Canadian Eskimos. He said that "approximately half" the suicides were related to

Danish scientists reported that criminal homicides, domestic disturbances and child abuse have escalated among the Eskimos in Greenland, where the murder rate 13 five times higher than in Denmark. As in Canada and Alaska. these problems were said to be related to the pervasive abuse of

Modern Methods Fail

Efforts to meet the mental health crisis among the 25.000 Eskimos in Alaska with modern psychiatric methods have failed because of the cultural gap betreen Eskimos and whites, U.S. specialists reported. However, they said, there is a premise of success in treating Eskimo mental disturbances by indigenous techniques, including the use of native healers, or shamaus.

"The standard psychiatric interview, in which the psychiatrist asks questions and tells the patient what to do, is alien to Eskimo thinking," said Dr. Robert Kraus, a psychiatrist with long experience among Eskimos.

"For example," he said in interview, "there is no way to deline the doctor-patient relationship in the Eskimo language. Eskimos would regard the seclusiveness of the relationship as impolite or boorish. They have no concept of going to another person for help, and it is considered childish to ask questions."

Nostrils Tell All

He demonstrated, with subtle gestures, how Eskimos often communicate in complete silence. He lifted his head slightly: That means yes." His nostrils briefly tightened. "That means no, or disapproval." Drawing on the native "philos ophy of mutual support." the Eskimo psychiatric aides assist victims of mental illness by tildirect means, Dr. Kraus said. For

The Watergate Story, as Told to the French

By Colin Gravois

DARIS, July 15 (IHT).—Despite more than two years of spectacular pyroteclmics—resignations, convictions, hidden microphones, impending impeachment—Watergate, to most Frenchmen. is still a third-rate burglary, just like Richard Nixon always said it was. Spotty and inaccurate press coverage, coupled with the smug French conception of the scandal as "those big American children at play again," has left the average Frenchman confused. abyemally ignorant, even mysti-

Nina Sutton, a 29-year-old Freuch journalist, is trying to correct that. Her new book, "Watergate Story" (Stock, 35 francs), a Watergate primer bused on her personal experience in Washington during last summer's first serious attempt in French to put Watergate in its real coned of becoming a famous criminrun of 10,000 copies, considered good here.

"People in France are not directly interested in Watergate," she says. "It's so complicated, there are so many players-they think it's a dull political story. I wanted to show them that it was as full of intrigue as a dotective thriller."

Irreverent, fast-paced and wittv, the book reads like a suspense novel. The original June 17, 1973, break-in itself still comes off as a third-rate job-"They did get caught, didn't they?" she wryly interjects.

Active in the Left Bank student revolt in May, 1968, she quit Paris for London soon afterward "when political despair dawned in France."

> When Miss Sutton came to visit her mother in Paris in May, 1973, she had no idea she would be in Washington working on a Watergate book three weeks later. During her five years' stay in London she did freelance writing for the Guardian and other publications and worked for the BBC French Service, but she was scarcely up to date on Watergate. All she was looking for was a cheap way to get to the United States for a holiday.

No Special Payments on Herstatt Debt

Officials Said to Agree Banks Have to Wait

FRANKFORT, July 15 (AP-DJ).—The liquidator and receiver of Bankhaus Herstatt have decided there is no chance for special treatment for banks that lost money in interrupted spot foreign exchange transactions with Berstatt Rolf Gocht, a director of the Bundesbank, said today. He said that liquidator Karl Woeste and provisional receiver Walter Reiss had ruled out the possibility of giving priority to claims from such banks. Equal treatment will be given to all creditors in the winding up of Herstatt's business, Mr. Gocht said.

Herstatt was ordered into liquidation June 26 after authorities discovered the bank had suffer-ed heavy losses in speculation on the forward foreign exchange

The closure of the bank during the afternoon had the effect of upsetting many spot interbank foreign exchange deals, in which Herstatt had received deutsche marks from other banks but had not completed its swaps by making corresponding deliveries of Speculation that preferential treatment might be given to banks that could not collect on such deals arose from a press conference given in London July 2 by Sir Kenneth Keith, chairman of Hill Samuel which is owed $21.5 million on a spot deal. He said that Bundesbank president Karl Klasen had expressed eagerness to settle still-pending spot foreign exchange deals apart from forward deals and other claims of creditors.

Morgan Guaranty Trust and Scattle First National Bank have also disclosed that Herstatt owed them a total of $35.5 million on such transactions.

It was understood that Hill Samuel argued to the Bundesbank that proceeds of incomplete spot deals should not be classified as money on Herstatt's books. Such an exemption would have meant Hill Samuel and other banks in a similar position were not Herstatt creditors. Thus, to settle their claims in full would not have constituted illegal discrimination in favor of one creditors over another.

Mr. Gocht said today that "other people also didn't want to be creditors." Among these, he said, would be any businessmen who delivered supplies to Herstatt shortly before its collapse and did not get payment.

Mr. Gocht said the decision of the liquidator and provisional receiver in the case of spot foreign exchange was "final."

Chase Seeks Court Ruling NEW YORK, July 15 (AP-DJ). -Chase Manhattan Bank has filed in federal court here an action requesting a court order as from the account Bankhans Herstate has with Chase.

Chase said it holds slightly more than $156 million in Her-statt's account subject to attachments totaling just under $174 million by plaintiffs who sued Herstatt in New York. Chase also said the total of payment orders and checks to be charged to Herstatt's account which Chase has rot paid exceeds $619 million. Chase alleges that certain banks that made payments to Chase for Herstatt's account requested the return of those sums and said Herstatt's liquidator demanded Chase remit the balance of the account to a bank in West Ger-

Chase said it filed the action to resolve the conflicting claims and demands.

Chase said its only claim to any of the Herstatt funds is a $5 million foreign exchange transaction and it has already attached that sun in the Herstatt

Pointing out that it is in a dangerous and doubtful position." Chase asked the court to bar 28 banking houses throughout the world from bringing suit against it and to rule who should share in the money it holds for Herstatt and in what amounts.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND NOTES

Ekofisk Seeks EEC Bank Loan

The Phillips-led Ekofisk consortium is seeking a loan from the EEC's European Invest-ment Bark to help finance oil operations. Bank President Yves le Portz told a press conference in Brussels that the bank's governors had "approved in principle" helping finance the Ekolisk project that is exploiting North Sea oil off the Norwegian coast. Mr. Le Portz did not say how much money EIB would provide for Ekofisk, but noted that the bank normally does not exceed 20 million units of account one unit equals $1.20; in individual loans. He added that there could be several such loans if need be. The president also said the bank expects its 1974 lending to increase considerably from 1973, when it extended loans totaling 816 million units of account. Mr. Le Portz said he expects total 1974 lending of over 1 billion

Union Corp., Barlow Rand to Merge Two of South Africa's biggest mining and industrial companies, Barlow Rand and Union Corp., have agreed in principle to merge. The current stock market value of the new group. to be named Unicorp Barlows, would be about 600 million rand (about $900 million). Union Corp. controls seven South African gold mines, which produce about one-tenth of the West's gold... Barlow Rand has widespread stakes in platinum, uranium and gold. The proposed terms call for every 100 Barlow Rand shares to be exchanged for 100 shares of Unicorp and for every 100 Union Corp. shares to be exchanged for 140 shares of Unicorp. Business activities of the two firms are largely complementary and both are to continue to operate separately under separate boards subject to the overall direction of the board of the new company. Barlow-Rand chairman C.S. Barlow is to be chairman of the joint company. Mr. Barlow says that the deal should be viewed as a partnership and a neutral

Calls for New Controls on Wages and Prices

Burns Urges $10-Billion U.S. Spending Cut

-Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur Burns today called for a $10 billion reduction in federal expenditure this fiscal year and also endorsed suggestions to lower capital gains taxes the longer an asset is

In testimony before the House Ways and Means Committee, he also called for the imposition of voluntary wage price control mechanisms.

Mr. Burns said that a $10-billion spending cut would ease the Fed's burden, but he would not promise an easing of monetary policy even if spending is cut. He did not advocate any tax increase but did oppose a tax

He urged restoration of the Cost of Living Council, advocating a series of boards that would review wage and price increases. He said that while the boards creases would be suspended for 30 or 40 days. After that period, the boards would recommend whether the price or wages should be increased—but the proposal would not be mandatory under the Burns plan. He would rely

He opposed outright price and wage controls. Reading from notes, Mr. Burns hinted at the future course of

U.S. Officials Oppose Law On Bank Holding Concerns

-U.S. officials today opposed legislation which would extend federal supervision to fund raising notes issued by bank holding companies. They told the House Banking Committee that the experiment proposed by Citicorp to issue $850 million in floating interestrate notes should be allowed to

But they added that the move should be monitored to guard against excessive damage to the thrift institutions which underwrite most of the nation's housing

He said it is not necessarily

WASHINGTON, July 15 (AP). be bought by persons withdrawing their investment dollars from thrift institutions, thus weakening their capacity to help home

> "The board believes it would be best to observe the results of this innovation in its early stages before arriving at a conclusion on this matter," Mr. Mitchell said.

Edward Schmunts, under secretary of the Treasury, said the government has an obligation to save the viability of the thrift institutions and the housing industry, but this should be done by revision of the overall finan-than by additional restrictions. He said the Citicorp issue and a proposed $200 million offering Chase Manhattan Bank would be potentially beneficial if they strengthened those financial institutions

Mr. Schmunts said the bill introduced last Thursday by banking chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., and others "is the wrong

But Du Pont

However, the stock of Du Pont Co., the nation's largest chemical manufacturer, was battered down by a flat second-quarter earnings statement.

For part of the session, the hammering in Du Pont appeared to have a dampening impact un the overall market. But the downward pressure was short-lived, enabling the list to end on the plus side for the second consecutive session. Du Pont fell 5 1.2 points to 152 1 2

The Dow Jones industrial average, weighed down by the slump in Du Pont. dropped 0.72 to 786.61 after having been up more than 9 points during the first hour of trading.

But the NYSE common stock index was ahead 0.39 to 43.75 late in the session, while more than twice as many issues advanced as declined.

Turnover was 13.56 million shares, versus 17.77 million on Pirst National Bank of Chicago this morning and New York's First National City Bank Friday both elected to hold their floating prime interest rates un-changed at 12 per cent despite formulas calling for rates in the neighborhood of 12 3/4 and 12 1/2 per cent respectively.

The action by the banks appeared to raise hopes again on Wall Street that interest rates were close to a top.

U.S. Steel, among the volume leaders, rose a point to 46.

Less-active Eli Lilli gained 2 1/8 to 74 3/8 and Johnson & Johnson 1 5/8 to 109 1/2. They raised quarterly dividend rates.

Moore McCormack Resources, which reported sharply higher second-quarter earnings, rose 11,8 International Minerals & Chemical rose 1 7/8 to 31 7/8. It said it has extended its offer to purchase 300,000 shares of Commercial Solvents common stock at $30 a share.

The stock of Commercial Solvents gained 3/4 to 30 1/2. Western, which traded a big block late in the session, surrendered 3/8 to 8 7/8 on around 345.000 shares. Motors were fractionally mixed. Most car makers reported lower early July car sales.

IBM rose 4 to 219, and Superior Oil 4 1/2 to 148 1/2. Heublein, the subject of bearishly construed comment in a published report over the weekend, fell 2 1/4 to 39 1/4. Prices advanced in light trading on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex index rose 0.34 to 77.01. Syntex, a volume leader, edged up 1/8 to 42 1/2. However, Houston Oil & Minerals fell 1 2 to 15 7/8, and Jacobs Engineering 1 3/8 to 9 5.8.

On the NASDAQ index of stocks traded over-the-counter. the industrial average rose 0.25 to finish at 71.66.

know." Yes, that was it You'd sweat a week over some purple fantesy of sex and romantic adventure set in an exotic locale, the kind that made you pauf just to reread it. You hand it in, and it comes back with a C and that tactful squelch: "Write about what you know." And what, after all was that supposed to mean? Back then you didn't knów about anything Frederick Forsylli writes one performing an act of revenge upon his old creative writing teacher. When he had that same song sing to him, he went out and became a by-gosh for-eign correspondent and found out about everything. Now he's come back and has written thrillers like "The Day of the Jackal" and "The Odessa File" that are just as fantastically romantic as you please, yet are so knowledgeably written, so overwhelmingly packed with fact and detail that they seem indisputably to be written out ofa variety of personal experience.

And yes, he has experienced these events—an attempted assassination of Charles de Caulle and the search for a Nazi war crim-inal—at a remove as a reporter, an observer, a researcher after fact. This distance from the reality of the events he describes accounts, at least in part, for the distinctly cool, almost cold, tone of his first novels.

The tone warms somewhat inhis latest, "The Dogs of War." In nearly every way that counts it is Frederick Forsyth's best book to date. And if he shows that he knows all about everything in this one, as he did in the two that preceded it, he also showsand for him this is something quite new-that he cares a little about the people and places be writes about here.

Prederick Forsyth's latest assignment as a correspondent was Biafra. He went there for BBC. displeased the British ambas sador to Nigeria and got himself recalled to London, whereupon he quit and returned for the length of the civil war as a freelancer. He served as a stringer for a num-ber of publications throughout the English-speaking would and I recall that the first time I ever-noticed his name was on a piece that appeared in a U.S. news-paper on the mercenaries who then formed the cadre of the Biafran Army.

Those same mercenaries are the subject of his new novel; they are his dogs of war (after Shakespeare). We follow a small group of them under the command of one Cat Shannon as they make good a last-minute. escape from already-fallen Biafra. Shannon will bring them together again, he promises, when he has found work for them: any war will do.

What he comes up with is an assignment from a mining com-

certain style."

It is Cut Shannon and his small detachment of mercenaries to whom they turn to do the job, and the body of the book con-cerns Shannon's careful preparations for the job for which he has contracted. Detail is piled upon detail and item upon item as he buys arms, an munition and all manner of equipment This is where Forsyth the re-porter takes over from the novelist—and the results are very nearly disastrous. Now don't get me wrong. He is a good reporter— and that's just the problem, for like any good reporter, he dearly loves a fact. And by the time Shannon has outlitted his expeditionary force, the suspicion has dawned that Forsyth loves far too many facts far too well.

Nevertheless he manages to save his narrative with a strong ending that takes us a twist or two beyond the inevitable shoot-out at the presidential palace. In the end, Fursyth commends his mercenaries to us as moral ex-emplars somewhat in the Hem-ingway mold. This may seem biggree to us—it would certainly seem so to any teacher of Greative Writing 101-but then who are we to say? After all Prederick Forsyth really knows about these men, and we do not.

On the diagramed deal from an event in the recent Monte Carlo open tournament, West came up with a fine defensive play to defeat a game. The opponents reached the normal contract of three no-trump after North opened a border-line hand with one club.

As South's confident leap to three no-trump suggested that he was well-prepared for a heart lead, West chose to lead a spade. The lead of dummy's second suit is often an effective move, and although it did not find a weakness it gave nothing away. South won with the king and Andretti Returns to Winning Course in U.S.

Wins at Watkins Glen to Snap 3-Year Drought

By Michael Katz WATKINS GLEN, N.Y., July 15 (NYT).—For almost 2 min-utes yesterday, Mario Andretti listened for something he didn't want to hear, "that little extra noise" that would indicate something was wrong with his race "It was the usual last lap," said the Italian-born No. 1 road racer in the United States. "I prayed. And I shifted like the chitch was made of butter." And in the end, after a final, delicate, careful 3.37 mile lap in which nothing went wrong, Andretti was a 13.57-second victor over Brian Redman of England in the formula 5000 race that was the highlight—and windup—of the five-star weekend. It was his first road-course victory in this country in more than three years.

In the ho-hum co-feature yesterday, Jackie Oliver of England won his third straight Canadian - American Challenge Trophy race of the season and his Shadow teammate, George Follmer, was second for the third straight time. No one else was on the same lap with the two black cars for the third

Oliver's victory in the 33-lap, or 111.441-miles, race was un-usually easy. Follmer has ignored team instructions in the past not to chase Oliver if the Englishman were leading. This time the American driver started ninth in the field of 17 and was in Oliver's rear-view mirror so quickly "I thought he must have started in the second row."

But Follmer was not feeling well in the 95-degree heat-the track temperature was 132and neither was his car, After closing to within a few car lengths of Ohver, he slowly dropped back.

Oliver averaged 116.78 miles an hour in winning the $10,000 first prize. Third was American Scooler Patrick, in one of the vintage AicLarens that belong in a museum and not on the same track with the Shadow. Andretti's victory was so overdue. He is the only American driver to have won both the Indianapolis 500 (1969) and a formula one championship race (South Airican Grand Prix. 1970. But in recent years. the 36-year-old driver has been almost shut out. His last roadcourse victory in this country at Riverside, Calif., in 1971. That formula car (formula one), the single-seat, open-cockpit machines that resemble Indy cars.

He did win the 1,000 kilometers of Monea (Italy) race in an Alfa-Romeo prototype carller this season with Arturo Merzario of Italy, but endurance racing Saturday left a sour taste when mechanical problems in the Six Hours of Watkins Glen made it one of Andretti's worst days at a track. Not only did the breakdown cost the Alia-Romeo a chance at finishing second to the world champion M2tra-Simca, but Andretti was disqualified for receiving help from his mechanics in repairing the car out on the course. But yesterday it was easy. Starting from the pole, his Lola T332-Chevrolet led from stert to finish in the field of 23. Andretti opened a lead of 20 seconds over Redman halfway through the 101.31-mile race, but eased off "because I didn't want to burn the car

Money, Freedom and the NFL Players' Strike

By Red Smith

NEW YORK, July 15 (NYT).-Before yesterday's doubleheader here at Shea Stadium, a familiar cry was heard around the American League: "Break up the Yankees!" It's the same old story of the rich getting richer. Not satisfied with homegrown talent like Bobby Murcer, Roy White and Thurman Munson that enabled the club to finish second once and fourth no fewer than three times in the last nine years, New York's arrogant ownership raids other rosters for Sand; Alomar, Chris Chambliss, Lou Piniella, Walt Williams, Bill Su-dakis. Jim Mason, Dick Tidrow. Sparky Lyle, Pat Dobson, Sam McDowell, Gene Michael, Graig Nettles, Cecil Upshaw, Elliott Maddox and Rick Dempsey, to name just a few. If it weren't for the reserve system, if players were free to sell their services to the highest bidder, a guy as greedy as Yank owner George Steinbrenner would stop at nothing and disadvantagowners like Tom Yawkey, John Galbreath, Phil Wrigley and Ray Kroc would be lucky to get the Yankees' culls. Competitive balance would be destroyed, the pennant race would be devoid of excitement, public interest would wither and the ballparks would be taken over

The doctors still don't know what is wrong with Jim Palmer's right elbow. There is no evidence of injury to the ulnar nerve and we therefore cannot confirm the diagnosis of damage to that nerve made by Dr. Robert Kerlan in Los Angeles last week," taid the Baltimore Orioles' physician, Dr. Leonardo Wallenstein, after the pitcher underwent further tests this week.

treat him like a gentleman and show a decent appreciation of his efforts, and if that doesn't unsure his loyalty and esprit de corps inside a year, then something is wrong with him or your organization. As for some other club offering twice what he is worth, the owner who makes a practice of that must go broke. This is one of the restraints of the marketplace.

Money and Freedom

When the current quarrel is settled, somebody should compile an authology of the choicer comments, oral and written, that the strike has inspired. It could begin with some observations by Joe Robbie, the Miami owner who persuaded Don Shula to jump from the Baltimore Colts to the

"I don't know a freer class of people on earth," said Joe, who may not know many classes. "This is the first time in the history of labor necotiations that $100,000 players are driving Mark IVs or Cadillacs to the picket

It should be observed in Robbie's defense that perhaps he was upset by loss of the revenue he would have got if the Dolphins io played the College All-Stat for the Chicago Tribune Charitics. After that game was canceled he lamented that "charity is the innecent victim, like an impocent bystander killed in cross-fire on the street."

That same day the Associated Press reported that the first victims of the strike were Chicago kids dependent on charity. Neither Robbie nor the AP mentioned that the players were digging into their own pockets to donate half the $212,000 the Tribune had hoped to raise for underprivileged children. Regarding the players' suggestion that the owners get up the other half, the league spokesman, John Thompson, said: "We don't feel we have any responsibility." Finally we have John Unitas, the elderly quarterback who can't play any more but still draws a reported quarter-million a year from the San Diego Chargers. "If they want to pay my salary," says this team player of his comrades at arms, "I'll join their strike." Makes you feel BETTENDORP. Iona, July 15 UPI .- Dave Stockton shot a 17-under-per 64 yesterday and captured the $100,000 Quad Cities Open golf tournament. He starteri the round four strokes behind the leaders and finished with a 13-under-par 271. Bruce Fleischer, a former national amateur champion, took second place after carding a 68. He had a chance to send the tournament into a playoff on the final hole, but missed a sevenfnot birdie putt.

Sam Snead, 62, who shared the lead entering the final round, slumped to a 1-over-par 72 and finished fourth at 275, four strokes off the lead. He was seeking to end a nine-year victory drought on the Professional Golfers' Association tour.

Stockton recorded seven birdies, including our on the final hole that clinched the victory. In pinning the $20,000 first prize. Stockton raised his winnings this year to more than $100,000 for the third time in his 10-year

$100,000 to Nixon's campaign? Doesn't he get a little service for that?"

So this funky said, "What do you want us to do?"

"Nuke 'em," I said. "Nuke 'em?" he answered like he was shocked or something.

"Frank would want it that way." I told him. "We can't drop a nuclear bomb on Australia just because Mr.

Sinatra can't get room service," he tells me. So I said, "Check it out with Kissinger before you say no. He owes Frank a favor." I didn't get any satisfaction from the White House so I called the Australian Embassy and got the ambassador on the line. I said unless the Prime Minister of his country personally apologized to you, Maxine Cheshire would throw a picket line around his embassy and cut off his water and gas. He got a little nervous about that, but he said Australia was a free country and he couldn't do anything about what unions over there decided to do to you. How do you like that, Frank? A free country and they won't even let you rough up a few newspapermen.

I told him he wasn't messing around with some pop singer. I said you were the greatest enchilada of them all. I said un-less you got some satisfaction for the way you were treated. America was going to lay on a boy-cott of kangaroo meat that would make the Aussies' heads spin. I think I got the message through because he said he would get in touch with his government and report back to me. I know you're wondering why I'm doing all this for you. The truth is I'm not only doing it for you but for every American entertainer in the world.

Unless we stand up for your rights, the United States is going to be treated like a pitiful helpless giant. Look what they did to Sammy Davis in Monaco. If we had nuked 'em after Sammy wasn't invited to a cocktail party at the palace, you wouldn't have had all that trouble in Australia. We've got to draw the line somewhere, and you're as good a case as any.

Sure, you worked things out in Australia for the moment, But I wanted you to know how we feel about you here in Washington. Whatever you do abroad is okay with us because you did it your way.

'Well, I'm not a psychiatrist,' says Brother Love.

'But it seems to me that death has always sold well and that's all there is to it.'

Death Sells: the Morbid Side of Rock'n'Roll

By Judy Bachrach

Washington (WP)—"Let's V face it, Baby," says Brother Love, "Death sells."

Brother Love is a deejay on a Washington radio station and he knows. He knows about the kids—the young kids, really—the 14-year-olds who soar in their dawning flights of sexual ecstasy whenever Alice Cooper gets up on stage and cheerfully dismembers a baby doll while singing "Dead Babies."

Brother Love's station does not play "Dead Babies." It also did not play "Onborn Child," three months back, a song about an aborted fetus which, "God bless it, never did very well," said Brother Love, in part he-cause stations like his refused

Too Morbid

There are some songs, say the people who determine which tune; should go over the airthat are simply too morbid. There are other songs, many of them hit singles, which are evidently, acceptably morbid.

Rock 'n' roll is into death. Very big on the charts for several weeks now is "Billy Don't Be a Rero" —all about a young man who is. Until the very last verse when Billy, the hero who obeys his lieutenant's command, suddenly isn't anything at all-least of all alive. And a letter commending his heroism is sent home to his girl, who promptly throws it away.

While there was a war going on in which Americans were dying, death songs were a good deal breezier. "War," a No. 1 tune in the summer of 70, was described succinctly by a college sophomore as "the only protest song I can dance to."

"My kids (10 and 7: listen to "Billy," says Dr. Michael Petite, a psychiatrist who is consequently forced to listen himself. Dr. Petite says his kids are too young to pay attention to the lyrics, but that many adolescents identify strongly with the thematic material.

Well part of it," says Dr. Petite, "is that (teen-agers) are thinking, 'Wouldn't my parents be upset if I killed myself or even if I died. And part of it is a reaction to the frustrations of life. The urge to avoid responsibility, which you can do if you're dead."

Always Sold Well

"Well I'm not a psychiatrist," says Brother Love, "But it seems to me that death has always sold well and that's all there is to it." And here Brother Love points to such ancient dirges as "Last Kiss" ("Oh where oh where can my baby be/The Good Lord took her away from me"). Bob Hughes, program director of another station points to the plaintive oldie of 1960, "Tell Laura 1 Lov: Her" (a useless sentiment, as its owner is dying).

These are real morbids, they claim. People didn't start dying off ir rock songs in 1974. But, as both Brother Love and Boo Hughes point out, "Last Kiss" was re-released about a year ago. And "Tell Laura I Love Her," another rerelease, was until recently No. 98 on the charts.

It is all very depressing. Those who have tried to voice this sentiment have been overruled. "One of our muckedymucks," says Hughes, "complained because he thought 'Seasons in the Sun' was too morbid. But I thought, you know, that it had a nice beat and was good to dance to. To use an old bandstand cant or any of the others tried cutting out "Seasons in the Sun" just because the words were a little morbid, then they'd have to go whole hog. Then they might as well delete... well... "Rock n' Roll Heaven." which has a nice beat and is crash.

"Movin right along to Rock 'n' Roll Heaven,'" says Brother Love. "That's a rip-off of an oldie called Three Stars." Like "Three Stars," "Rock 'n' Roll Heaven" is about rock stars who have died young.

"Jimi (Hendrix) gave us rainbows/Janis (Joplin) took a piece of her heart/And Otis (Redding) brought us to the dock of the bay..." Brother Love in a final stab at explanation save that "People can relate to death. Like they can relate to love." And he adds that when Alice Cooper mutilates mannequins to the delight of teenies everywhere it is because "Al is just an old beer-drinking kid from Phoenix who knows what sells." There is a new song out and maybe it, too, will sell. It is called "Air Disaster." It is not, you understand, really about an air disaster. It is about a guy on a plane who is getting ... Well ... awfully nervous. So nervous that he keeps singing over and over again, "I don't wants die in an airplane

"That guy's got a prob-lem," says Brother Love. "He shouldn't fly. Right?"
